Internationally recognised New York-based electronic artist DJ Olive (Gregor Asch) has been a central figure in the New York electronic and art-music communities for over 10 years, and played a key role in branding a variety of divergent genres of music, most recently Rooftop Music stemming from Brooklyn's countless rooftop parties and happenings.

Working on a wide range of projects including the Christian Marclay DJ Trio project, performances with members of Sonic Youth and recording/touring with the highly regarded jazz composer Uri Caine, DJ Olive's audio palette is as diverse as it is unique. He seamlessly brings together disparate and eclectic sound passages to create works that combine the sensibilities of dancehall and breakbeat with glistening textural ambience and electro-acoustic approaches.
